Holy Grail signs Banks lease

Read Comments(53) Recommend(13)

The Enquirer - 12/29/2010

The owners of the Holy Grail restaurant and bar grew up in the era of the Big Red Machine, so they're excited that they've leased space at The Banks riverfront development. More

Investors boost Fifth Third

The revival of bank acquisitions and optimism that a recovering economy will spur loan demand is lifting Fifth Third Bancorp's shares as well as the stocks of other banks as the year winds to a close.

Park+Vine finds niche

Dan Korman, owner-operator of Park+Vine, Cincinnati's only all-vegan retailer specializing in products that are safe for the environment, may not be a typical Cincinnati. But being typical has never been his style.

Careers

Combining business, personal travel takes planning

Business travel is expected to pick up in 2011 after two years of cutbacks, which could put even more of a strain on employees who struggle to meet all their work demands and find time to spend with families or just recharge their batteries.

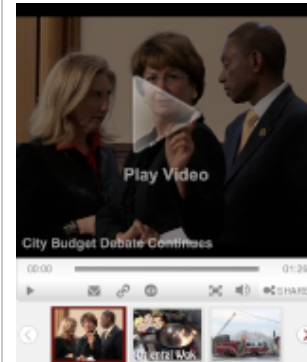

Jobless could have leg up on the employed

This just in: Employers do hire the unemployed. Even more shocking: Some would rather hire a person who is not currently working.
